Wildcats, Irish "Singing Blues" as Big Games Near

PITT LINE BOTHERS ANDERSON; INJURIES HIT PURPLE SQUAD

Northwestern in Crippled Condition for Struggle with Ohio State.

BY WILLIAM WEEKS
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Heavily (HUNK) Anderson, Notre Dame's senior football coach, is singing a new theme song for his men this week—and the title is "That Pittsburgh Line."

Anderson's acrobats have brought in terrifying reports concerning Pittsburgh's line, and the more he hears about it, the less the work of his own forwards appeals to him. Nothing has happened to the Irish bull-carrier force, however, and if Anderson's treatment of the line situation proves satisfactory, Pittsburgh will have a full afternoon in its first appearance at South Bend.

Wildcats Crippled
Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern also is singing and in a minor key. The Wildcats' backfield, which has been broken and re-fashioned about as often as any in the Midwest during the past three seasons, again is in bad shape. Red Russell, the crashing fullback, has returned to practice, but will not be ready to play Saturday against Ohio State, and Ohio State, his first assistant, probably will not be able to start. In addition, Ken Weisen, the brilliant sophomore, and the equally brilliant Pug Rensler are not in the best of shape. The Wildcats are long on line strength, however, and will depend on the forwards to break up Ohio's running game.

The Buckeyes have been working in to add points to their offense, and Dan Miller, backfield coach and one of Notre Dame's famous "four horsemen," has concentrated on defense against Rensler's passing. Offense should be good.

Illinois and Michigan have finished preparation for their struggle at Champaign Saturday. Both eleven have been drilled on offense almost to the exclusion of defense, and a wide open game probably will result. Roy Hudson, Michigan's captain and fullback, is a doubtful starter due to illness.

The eastern universities, Wisconsin and Purdue, which meet Friday at Philadelphia, and Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, respectively, were optimistic. The Badgers suffered no ill effects from their thriller with Purdue last week, and their strongest lineup will be ready for the Quakers.

The Northwestern figure to stage a forward passing fight against the Irish.

Meet in Buckeye Feature

Coach George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan, and Coach Chester Pitts, Miami.

Above are pictured some of the boys who will play an important part in the annual Ohio Wesleyan-Miami football battle Saturday at the Delaware field. Cartwright of Miami and Westfall of Ohio Wesleyan, opposing backs, are likely to furnish spectators with one of the thrills as they tear off their usual dashes through the enemy defenses. It should be a great battle. Traditional rivals, these two teams face the prospect of being practically eliminated from the B. A. A. race by a defeat Saturday.

Colgate-N. Y. U. Battle Tops Eastern Schedule

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Several arguments concerning the purely mythical eastern football "championship" may be settled Saturday when Colgate and New York University pick up their feud. They resumed up last year with Colgate stepping on what Ulster aspirations N. Y. U. might have had with a 7-0 triumph which left both among the eastern leaders, but neither on top. This year they are about in the same position. Both are undefeated.

While these two are settling their argument, most of their rivals are scheduled for seven tests. Pittsburgh tackles the toughest job of the lot, going west to face Notre Dame. Washington & Jefferson, another undefeated leader, meets Lafayette; Syracuse faces Penn State, which although the underdog has managed to upset the Orange program quite regularly in past seasons. Harvard and Pennsylvania, run into a pair of powerful international opponents in Texas and Wisconsin respectively.

Brown and Columbia, which also are unbeaten, have comparatively easy games ahead. The Bruins play Lehigh, and Columbia meets Williams. Cornell has an open date. The beaten teams which have no championship claims left hold high rank on this week's schedule.

HARDING FACED WITH TASK OF CHECKING FLEET REDMEN STAR

Talbot Holds Key to Outcome of Annual President-Bucyrus Battle.

Upon one, Gene Talbot, brilliant quarterback of Bucyrus High school, apparently rests the outcome of the annual Harding-Bucyrus football battle Saturday afternoon at Fairground field. If the speedy field general of the Redmen gets away on many overland excursions such as marked the Harding-Bucyrus fray of 1930, the Presidents may as well concede the Irish-coached eleven the second consecutive victory. On the other hand, if Harding can perfect a defense to hold the vaunted speedster in check at least a fair share of the time, the possibility of a victory for the Red and Black is more than even.

Excepting the fact that Harding does not possess a pair of backfield men of the ability of Talbot and Pope there is not a whole lot of difference in the two outfits. Harding's line will undoubtedly be heavier than that of Bucyrus but it is extremely doubtful if this weight will give the Red and Black forward wall very much of an advantage.

Bucyrus Backs Superior

The Bucyrus backfield, all things considered, is superior to that of Harding. The Presidents do not have a triple threat man such as Talbot and they do not have a line player to match Pope. These two players give Bucyrus an advantage in the running and line smashing divisions of play but as far as kicking and passing is concerned the teams rate about even. Unless the Harding forward wall functions in better form Saturday than in the last two weeks the Marion ball carriers will be forced to do the greatest portion of their ground gaining on either off tackle thrusts, sweeping and runs, or aerial bombs. The center of the Buckeyes line has been doing more than its share in keeping the opposition in check in four games to date. It may be weakened somewhat this week in case Oberlander, regular center is unable to play. Oberlander was hurt in the Ashland fray and is not likely to play all the game. There is no substitute of the Bucyrus squad near his equal at the pivot post.

Pope Holds Key

Rides Four Winners.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—It would have paid well to have had a 23 straight ticket on horses ridden by Melvin Lewis, the 19-year-old apprentice jockey at Hawthorne yesterday. Lewis brought in four long shots, three of them in succession. His first mount, Stick around, paid $21.04 to win. He booted in High Proof, at $14.94, in the third, and then came right back in the fourth with Very Well, which paid $21.68. Last year was out of the money in the fifth, but Lewis got Phantom home in the sixth, to pay the highest price of the day, $38.88.

Grid Gossip

BLUFFTON, O., Oct. 22.—The Purple and White eleven of Bluffton college today was pushed headlong into a hard drill program as Coach A. C. Bucky pointed his team for the Spelling Green grid argument Saturday.

DELAWARE, O.

—Two batting Bishops held in the football background through injuries are again in uniform with Wesleyan and will appear against the Miami Redskins in the homecoming struggle here Saturday. They are Howard Giberson, Springfield fullback, and Red Campbell, of Elmira, N. Y.

WILMINGTON, O.

—Offense with a capital "O" is the characteristic of J. Steele, coach of Wilmington college, hopes to have instilled in his men in time for the game with John Carroll Friday night. The Quakers have yet to win a 1931 game, and have scored but one touchdown in four games due to their weak offense.

AKRON, O.

—Akron's Zips will put into their game with Case at Buckled field here next Saturday an extra ounce of effort in their blocking and tackling, the practice periods show, as Coach Staley puts them through an intensive romp in preparation for the contest.

WILLAMAN WORKS ON BUCKS' DEFENSE

Dick Smith, Ohio Center, Holds Key to Stopping of Northwestern Attack.

BY JAMES L. KENICE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 23.—Columns have been written about the exploits of Ohio State University's backfield men and much has been said about the deeds of ends, tackles and guards, but little has been said of the center.

This is a story of a center, the boy who stands on his head, unable to protect himself against the charge of the opponent. Name—Richard A. Smith, of East Chicago, Ill., weight 171 pounds, height six feet, one inch.

But who ever heard of a center being the main cog in a football team? That's what Smith will be Saturday when the Buckeyes take the field against the Big Ten champions from Northwestern. He will be one of the busiest men on the field and here's the reason.

Needs Strong Defense

Coach Willaman is faced with the proposition of stopping a smooth clicking forward pass offense, a hard line-plunging drive and a swift and run attack. And here's where Smith is involved.

Gauthier Seeks Guards To Fill Line Vacancies

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 23.—Lack of material for the guard positions has given Coach George Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan's football team a problem this week as his eleven drills for the Miami homecoming game in Selby stadium here Saturday.

Johnny Raugh, Altoona, Pa., regular right guard, is lost for at least three weeks due to injuries sustained in the Denison game of last week, and last night Don Lantz, Canton, sustained hurts that promise to keep him from playing against Miami.

Since Jack McDevine, Cleveland, the next ranking guard, was hurt in the Denison tangle, Gauthier is faced with a serious problem in selecting capable men for the two guard posts.

George Flint, Syracuse, N. Y., likely will take the place of Lantz, and Gauthier may use Robert Forsythe, Cambridge, in Raugh's place, although there is a possibility that Cantor, shift Don Jackson, Toledo tackle, into the position. Jackson won his letter at guard last season but has been having difficulty getting into games at tackle due to the good work of Harry Barber, Buffalo, and James Hoff, Columbus, sophomore tackles.

Frank Hickman, Akron, a sophomore tackle, is another man whom Gauthier may shift to guard to strengthen the weakened spots. All other members of the first-string team appear to be certain starters against Miami, unless they like Lantz, are unfortunate in practice this week.

HOLD YOUR BREATH, FOLKS! 'TIS KILONS ON NEXT MAT CARD

"Cyclone Clyde" To Provide Opposition, So Anything May Happen.

Marion's favorite "bad boy," the roughest, toughest, cornered, most piece of wrestling humanity that ever hit this city, and who, despite his adverse ways is always welcomed back by local mat fans, will appear in the headline bout of next Monday night's mat show at Shovel gym.

If you're a confirmed "mat" fan you've already guessed who he is. Yes, you're right. Talk "Cyclone John" Kilonis, the Norfolk, Va. blueblood himself and in signing him to appear here once more, Promoter Clete Kaufman seemed as his opponent, possibly the roughest, toughest, cornered, most piece of wrestling humanity that ever hit this city.

Yes, you're right again, "Cyclone Clyde" Robinson, the wind from Nebraska, that'll beat John and when these two tangle with their pretty little, petty little methods of lawful mat, mean little methods of lawful mat, in a two best out of three bout, anything short of murder is self is very likely to be on lap.

BLAKE ENTERS GUILTY PLEA

Marion Man, Companion Face Penitentiary Sentence in Shooting.

Special to The Star
MT. GILEAD, Oct. 22.—Jefferson Blake of Marion and Clyde Davis of Fulton pleaded guilty to shooting with intent to wound when arraigned before Judge W. P. Vaughan Wednesday.

They were indicted after Blake was wounded with a shotgun at the hands of Charles Brown of Fulton when they allegedly went to the home of Brown and engaged in an argument. Davis and Blake were to go on trial Wednesday.

They were represented by Attorney T. B. Maister. An investigation of the circumstances led officers to believe that only one of them could have fired the two shots which entered the Brown porch and narrowly missed Mrs. Brown.

Judge Vaughan has deferred sentencing the two men and they are free under bond pending his decision. They face a penitentiary term.

HEAD OF U. S. LODGE GIVES TALK AT LIMA

Local K of P. Members Hear Krautz; Charles Justice Toastmaster.

Ladies Knights of Portland, Ore., supreme chancellor of Knights of Pythias lodge in the United States, was the principal speaker last night at the state-wide meeting of Knights of Pythias lodge at Lima in honor of O. O. Barr, recently elected grand chancellor of Ohio.

Charles L. Justice of Marion, past grand chancellor and presiding judge of the third district court of appeal, was toastmaster. All lights were turned out for one minute at 10 p. m. in memory of the late Thomas A. Edison.

The meeting was held in Memorial hall with approximately 1,800 in attendance. The largest county delegation present was from Marion county, with a representation of nearly 100.

A class of nearly 100 candidates were given the page rank, the first degree of K. of P. work, by Harry Love of Minneapolis, Minn., supreme keeper of seal and record. The group was named the "Star Clear" class.

The oath was administered on the Bible which was used in founding the first Knights of Pythias lodge in the United States at Washington, D. C., during the Civil war. Justice Rathbone, founder of the order, was given the Bible by his grandmother in 1864 when he was five years old. The Bible is kept in the vault in Minneapolis which houses all records of the lodge and was brought to Lima for the initiation.

The largest representation of Uniform Rank lodges was from Marion, with James Ramsey, grand of the Ohio brigade, heading the delegation of about 20. The members attended in full dress uniform.

Barr concluded the meeting with a short talk.

EAGLES PLAN FLOAT FOR NOV. 11 PARADE

Lodge Will Participate in Armistice Celebration Planned by Legion.

In addition to the band and drum corps, the Eagles lodge will be represented by a float in the Armistice day parade next month, as the result of action taken at the regular meeting of the lodge last night. James Sons, E. E. Bailey and James M. Bonner were appointed a committee to have charge of preparing the float. While not definitely decided, it is expected the float will portray some one of the humanitarian features of the order.

His applications for membership were acted on by the lodge and further plans for the annual fair to start next week, were discussed. A report of the district convention at Delaware last Sunday given by A. Ammer, president of the local lodge and a report of the auditing committee, were also included in last night's program.

The fifteenth annual charity fair and bazaar to be given by the lodge, will open next Wednesday in the Eagles building at Orchard and West Center streets. The fair which will continue four days will occupy both the second and third floor and will be one of the largest of the unfortunate outside of the city.

The proceeds of the fair will be used exclusively for relief of the city's poor. It was announced by John Abel, secretary, this morning. "We have a fund within the lodge for the care of our own poor, and the money received from the fair will be used exclusively for the relief of the unfortunate outside of the lodge." Music for the fair will be furnished by London's Eagle Hawaiian orchestra.

Amateurs Send Radio Messages Leading to Arrests in Slaying

Special to The Star
KENTON, Oct. 22.—Interest shown by two amateur radio operators—Kenton and Detroit youths—and their assistance given in communicating information that led to the speedy arrests of Joe and Pete Nichols, brothers of Kenton, in connection with the fatal shooting of Clarence McCracken, was lauded by officials of Kenton and Detroit.

Through an amateur station operated by Clinton Stiff Jr., officials broadcast descriptions of Joe Nichols. The message was picked up by Homer Donahue, operator in Detroit, who happened to be listening in at the time of the broadcast.

Unable to rebroadcast the message to the police radio system because of a difference in wave length, Donahue immediately informed officers by telephone. After verifying the Kenton radio request through officials here, Detroit police immediately sent out information over their own system.

The Kenton message was sent out Monday night and the arrests followed Tuesday noon.

EDISON AT REST IN ROSEDALE CEMETERY

Burial in Late Afternoon Follows Simple Funeral Services.

By The Associated Press
WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22.—At Rosedale cemetery a newly filled grave marked today the resting place of him who was Thomas Alva Edison.

He was buried late yesterday as dusk closed in upon the mountains, the aged widow who kissed the casket as it was about to be lowered into the grave, then placed upon it a white rosebud; the wife of the President of the United States; close relatives and friends of the inventor, and a few of his longtime laboratory associates.

Four hundred of his friends crowded the drawing room—Mr. Edison always called it "the parlor"—of Glenmont, the Edison home, for the simple funeral services in mid-afternoon. Rev. Dr. Stephen J. Herben read the service and spoke the prayer; and there was the music of Bach and Beethoven.

Broadway Dims Lights as Tribute.
By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The incandescent light which Thomas Alva Edison invented was dimmed in his memory last night as New York paid him tribute.

Broadway, a flashing white way of electricity, was a shadow of its brief self. Most of the flashing signs and billboards went dark for the moment of tribute of 10 p. m. Traffic came to a standstill as the familiar red and green beacons blinked a 60 seconds rest.

Woman Hurt.
Mrs. Edward C. Weaver, residing at the rear of 378 North State street, sustained a severe cut on her right leg at her home late yesterday afternoon when a butcher knife with which she was working slipped.

TWO CHARGE WITH MURDER

Sheriff Says Joe Nichols Held. Confessed: Brother Also Held.

Special to The Star
KENTON, Oct. 22.—Special action of the Hardin county grand jury today is considering a degree murder charge against Joe Nichols, 21, and his brother, Pete, 22, in connection with the shooting of Clarence McCracken, early Sunday, while standing in front of his business place dealing with his landlady.

The brothers were captured the home of a sister in Detroit and a half day after the shooting and returned here Wednesday.

The shooting, according to officials, was the aftermath of a fight between McCracken and Nichols a week preceding the slaying when McCracken hit Nichols on the head with a heavy glass. Nichols was named by McCracken before his death, and by the landlady as the trigger man. The sheriff said Joe confessed to the shooting.

The two escaped in an automobile stolen from a taxi driver after he had bound and gagged him and then tied him to a fence in the country with his own shoe laces.

BOYRDS—Removal of formerly used by the Cleveland Southwestern railway company, started by workmen today on public square.

GRAIN PRICES SLIP LOWER

Liverpool Quotations Cause Wheat To Decline at Chicago.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Grain prices averaged lower today after an irregular start. Liverpool wheat quotations showed comparative weakness, despite reports that by the end of this month Italy would allow millers to use 25 per cent admixture of foreign wheat com- pared with 8 per cent at present. Opening 4 cent off to 4 1/4 up, wheat later sagged all around. Corn started at 1/2¢ decline to 1/4 gain and subsequently held near the initial limits.
Resistance to price setbacks in wheat developed in connection with trade reports that Russia was now expected to ship 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels less than last year, and that world demand might exceed last year by 30,000,000 bushels. It was not expected that shipments from Russia would cease abruptly, but a gradual decrease was looked for.
For the first time in some years, world's wheat available supplies fell below those of a corresponding period of the previous year.
Corn and oats were governed largely by wheat action.
Provisions responded to firmness of hog values.

Chic Star Patterns

— Practical and Simple —

For Little Miss 4 to 10.

2197 Pattern, 2197

Simple lines and simple fabrics distinguish smart juvenile clothes. A cunning collar with matching sleeve trim and four skirt gores, contrast smartly the body of the dress and the bloomers. The original model was made of blue cotton broadcloth and trimmed with white broadcloth that was splashed with blue flowers. It was adorable! Equally suitable fabrics are challis, jersey, gingham and percale.
Pattern 2197 may be ordered only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 re- quires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric, 1/2 yard contrasting. No dress- making experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

HARDING FACED WITH FLEET REDMEN STAR

ability of Talbot. Pope is relied on to crack the line for gains once in awhile but if Talbot is checked the entire Bucyrus offense is pretty well stopped. If Talbot finds him- self unable to run the flanks con- siderably he is likely to resort to slipping a series in an effort to surprise.
He is not the best passer in the league but he is good enough to cause Harding no end of diffi- culty unless a smart defense is built to combat the aerials.
Conches Kiah and Nisbaum of Bucyrus are spending a goodly share of time this week in perfect- ing what they hope is a defense to stop the Harding running attack, expecting the Presidents to flash more power in this department than in the 1930 encounter. To date this year the Redmen have displayed more ability at gaining ground themselves than at holding opponents' attacks in check. Tack- ling and blocking in three of the four games played by Bucyrus has been decidedly below the expected form.

Street Repair Program Aids Pupils, Fire Trucks

All Thoroughfares in City Made Passable to Fire Department Equipment; Streets Near Schools Given Special Attention.

A street improvement program regarded as the most extensive in recent years which makes every street in the city passable to the fire department at all times of the year, practically reached a conclusion with the improving of streets and sidewalks in the vicinity of the two new school buildings in Oakland Heights and at Pennsylvania and Indiana avenues. The work has been done under the direction of D. J. Harlow, service director.

Use Gravelled Main Road leading from Balfour street to the new junior high school building in Oakland Heights has been converted into a gravelled road and connects with Oakland and Merkle and Woodrow avenues forming a link of improved roads which will make it possible for automobiles to reach the school from either direction at any time of the year without leaving improved roads.

Children who walk to school have also been taken care of in the improvement program, sidewalks and sidewalks having been built in the vicinity of the building which will provide the children with good walks to the building from any direction.

The same plan has been carried out at the new building at Pennsylvania and Indiana avenues. Where previously no walk existed on Indiana avenue from Grand to Pennsylvania, a walk has been built by the service department.

Indiana avenue previously a mud street from Reed avenue to the east end has been converted into a gravelled street connecting with Merchant avenue which has also been improved to Church street forming a connecting link of improved streets and making it possible for automobiles to reach both the front and rear of the school building without getting into the mud.

As a further convenience to those wishing to reach the building, Pennsylvania avenue has been opened from where it formerly ended just north of the new building to 321 Vernon avenue. While not stoned the road has been rolled with a heavy roller and if possible will be stoned later the next winter.

Repair Curbing Employees of the service department today were putting back in place the curb on Balfour avenue which was pushed back in some cases as far as six inches by heavy trucks during the building of a sewer through the street several years ago. The space between the curb and the asphalt block permitted water to enter forcing the blocks out at the water front in the winter.

The improvement program also included the repair of sidewalks in both the business and residential districts removing steps and other dangerous hazards. Alley entrances in the business districts have also been repaired with concrete removing a number of places dangerous to pedestrians.

The street improvement program started by Service Director Harlow two years ago has eliminated every mud street, making it possible for the fire department and for physicians to reach any home.

More than 50,000,000 acres of Canadian land are under cultivation.

Greenland-Redding Ceremony Read at Home of Bride

A PRETTY home wedding was solemnized at 9:30 o'clock this morning when Miss Leanne Greenland and Delmas L. Redding exchanged their nuptial vows at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Greenland of 871 Davis street. Palma and greenery, combined with baskets of autumn flowers formed an altar at the foot of the stairs in the living room before which Rev. B. Tyler Gathen, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church, and members of the bridal party stood for the reading of the single tie service. The ceremony was witnessed by members of the immediate families and close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

Following the service a wedding breakfast was served and later Mr. and Mrs. Redding left on a short wedding trip through the north-eastern part of the state.

The bride was lovely in a wedding gown of white satin and Valenciennes lace with white veil and more pumps. The long full skirt touched the floor in an even hemline and the tight-fitting bodice was of the Valenciennes lace finished with v-neckline and long sleeves. A narrow belt held with a clasp of brilliantia marked the waistline below which were four tiers of narrow ruffles. The only ornament on the gown was a shoulder bouquet of flowers fashioned in sheer satin. The bride's hair was in Princess Eugene style with a large white plume and her only jewelry was a strand of crystal beads. The bride's bouquet was fashioned of white roses and gypsophylia held with a bow of wide white ribbon.

Miss Marian Dale Greenland attended her sister as bridesmaid. She was dressed in a model of the new gown made with long sleeves and trimmed with a large rolled collar of cream-colored satin. Her small hat, in the same shade as her gown and she wore black pumps. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of Tallman roses. Ralph Eaton attended Mr. Redding as best man. Covers were placed for 24 at the wedding breakfast.

The bride wore for her traveling costume a two-piece frock of brown crepe, the bodice of which was of ivory crepe. Her small feather-trimmed hat, gloves, and shoes were in harmonizing tones.

Mrs. Redding is a graduate of Harding High school with the class of 1928 and Mr. Redding is a member of the class of 1927. Both are employed with the Busquebush silk mills. Mr. Redding is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Redding of 264 Olney avenue.

Venice's liquor glass dropped to the floor with a crashing sound. She got her hands up against his chest and pushed him furiously away.

"Why did you do that?" she cried. Her cheeks were flaming. She put her palms against them as though to ease their burning.

"What did you want?" he asked, his eyes twinkling gayly, no insolence in his tone. "You seemed to be perspiring about something."

"Thank you," snapped Venice bitterly and turned away. She went to stand in the doorway of the living-room, furiously hurt. He had insulted her. It was the first time she had ever made a purposeful effort to correct a man, and she knew a tremendous sense of humiliation. Defeated. Chast. Unexpectably she hated him. But she wanted him just the same.

"How about a fourth at bridge, Venice?" Philip Manning at her elbow. She gave a little start, then forced herself to smile quickly into his nice, pink and white face.

"I'd like it."

She joined Philip Manning and an elderly brother and sister, who had sat at the same side of the dinner table as she and so had escaped her notice. Facing a doorway that opened into the next room, she relished each opportunity when she was dumbly so that she could watch the dancing. Roland Walworth glided gracefully with first one girl close in his arms and then another. Lola laughed continually from this position to that. Celine Nails sitting about more than she danced.

Venice won eleven dollars and forty cents. But the evening had been her loss. Young Spectacles took her home in a taxi. She received the unusual presence of an escort with complete indifference, and her mind excluded his attempts at conversation in angry retrospect of the dazzling young man. He was more than rude to me, she thought. I'll get even with him some day. This resentful attitude was not quite the honest reflection of what she felt. She should feel resentment. But she liked him. She wanted him to like her. It was necessary to exaggerate his slight to ease her own longing, to save her wounded pride.

"But you have something more to you than the average social vapidly," the young man at her side was saying. "Why do you bother to strive for transient recognition in an empty milieu?"

Venice knew a sudden sharp fury. It is not pleasant to be assured that that which you desire in vain is not worth the longing.

"You don't really know anything about me," she said unkindly.

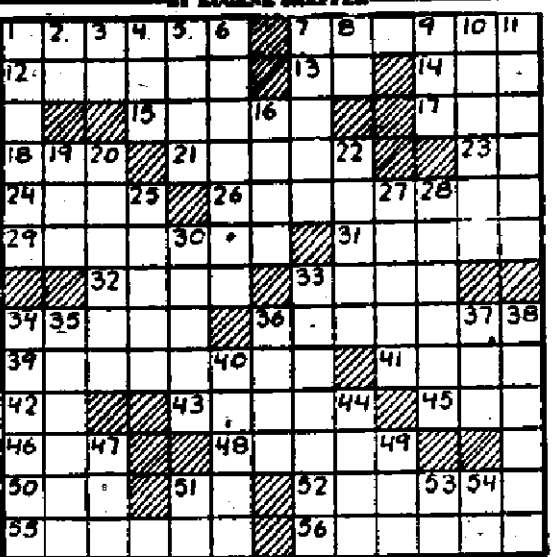

"No." There was interrogation that irritated in his simple negative. Venice bit her lip.

The taxi drew up in front of the apartment house where she lived. "Thank you for taking me home," she left him paying the driver knowing well that she had been rude but uncaring in her bruised, unhappy state of mind.

She went to bed nursing an intangible prick. A thorn had pierced her desire for popularity. It remained there momentarily to rake, but in no way dispelled the intensity of her longing.

The football season was left behind. Trim tailored suits and cloth coats gave way to wraps of mink or caracul, baby lamb or satinet.

"Heart of a Wife"

The injured Chinese Revue Man, Information.

HARRY UNDERWOOD took a step forward as the wounded Chinese on the bed asked if I had a sister, a twin.

"Now what do you suppose he's got in his bonnet?" he muttered out of the side of his mouth to me in a tone inaudible to the wounded man and indeed to Katherine as well.

"I don't know," I murmured back, in the same tone, and then spoke to the man on the bed.

"No, I have no sister. I am an only child."

The wondering look deepened in his face and he lay very still for several moments.

"Your face is hurt," he said at last, absently not questioning.

"But big man—bad Chinabeen, he say if you no give him paper he fix your face so you wish you dead."

Madge remembered.

His words made plain to me something which I had only fearfully skirted in surmise before, and I recoiled at the vision which those faltering syllables brought to me. Once again I saw the hideous face of the Chinese who had watched me from the window of the Tiger farmhouse and demanded the letter on flaming red rice paper and in Chinese characters which Mr. Tiger had found on the seat of my car. I saw the venom in his face, the cold fury in his voice, as he told me I had "too pretty a face to spoil" and saw the steaming backward of his hand to his pocket, which I had stepped by threatening him with the little silver pistol that Lillian had put in my bag for emergency.

I had never allowed myself to speculate upon what diabolical weapon that yellow hand had held. But now it was brought home to me. I could not dodge it. As I had surmised, it must have been a bottle of some deadly, disfiguring liquid which he had held ready to dash into my face. But I knew that I had no time to spend in recalling that dreadful incident. The eyes of the Chinese were fixed on me with a bewildered question in them which I knew I must answer.

"He tried to throw a bottle of stuff in my face," I exclaimed speaking slowly as to a child, "but he did not succeed."

The puzzled look deepened.

"He say he throw bottle, spoil face," the man insisted feebly.

It was my turn to be bewildered. According to the theory which all of us had, concerning the movements of this messenger, he had not gone back to the gang employing him after he had come to me demanding Marion's secret lock-box, which I had refused to give him. His terror of his employers, his dread of going back to them, without the thing for which he had been sent, had been so potent that when the letter addressed to Lee Chow in Chinese characters, had been found fastened to the seat of my automobile, we had argued that he must have gained some talking of Lee Chow's presence in the country, and have written the letter to him. But this knowledge of what the gang leaders had said seemed to indicate that he had gone back to them.

What It All Meant

"How do you know that the man said that he had thrown the bottle at me? Did you go back to them after you asked me for the lock-box?"

His eyes regarded my face unwinkingly for several seconds. That he was revolving in his mind the question as to how much was safe to tell me was very plain.

"No," he said at last. "I no go back. I no dare go back. They say they kill me if I come back, no box. But—I watch and I watch and I hear and I see. I hear him say he will throw bottle at your face and I hear him say he did throw bottle and hear him laugh when he say you never be pretty any more. I velly glad he no spoil pretty face. No matter what happens old man like me, but Lee Chow and his friend heart velly sad if pretty face spoiled."

I felt as if a hand, a twisting, gripping hand had been suddenly thrust into the nerve fibres holding my heart.

If this speech meant anything at all it meant that Lee Chow and Hugh Grantland were somewhere in the country and that this poor wretch had received news, no matter how vague, of their whereabouts.

It meant something else also. I had heard a little of the workings of the Oriental mind, and I knew the former henchman of Lee Chow had the idea in his head that Lee Chow's "friend" had a very special interest in me. I did not need Harry Underwood's quick, tracing glance at me to make my cheeks burn at the reflection.

The Questioning Ends

But the next instant Mr. Underwood had turned serious again. He spoke in an undertone to Katherine:

"How much can be stand? I'd like to question him some more."

Katherine slipped practiced fingers to the man's wrist and scrutinized his face keenly.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I'll have to call off the wance, right now. He's stood this pretty well, considering his condition. But I can't permit anything more tonight. Tomorrow, perhaps. I'll see how he is in the morning."

"You're the doctor—as well as the nurse"—he told her. "Do you need any help now—or—"

But Lillian was looking at Katherine, and she interpreted the result of her gaze promptly.

"The best thing we can do is to get out of here, pronto," she said. "Come on, Mauger, the downy pillow for you and me."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

—BY JUDITH M. LEWIS—

TOMORROW will be Friday, and that will be all right with me. It was coolish but not wet when I pushed Jubilee out of bed and got up to open the window and let him down by the rope in his teeth, and when I had got him let down the gray clouds and dead leaves were flying and it wasn't daylight and I thought of the little coon's soul again. I don't know why it is that a fellow thinks of dead things when he is in the dark, but he does. I don't know if souls can steer themselves or not, but if they can they ought to be able to have a lot of fun. They can go down south in the winter time and can go up and set on the north pole in the summer time, and never get cold or sleepy or thirsty. But I would hate to be a little boy's soul and happen in where there was a big plate of ice cream on a table, because I couldn't eat it or even lick it. I bet when a little boy's soul happens in where there is ice cream it almost goes crazy trying to get some of it.

When I took the ham-burner ashes out and emptied them, they all blew over the fence into the next yard, and before they stopped blowing, the lady stuck her face up over the fence and glared at me, and before she could open her face I took my hat off and said, "Oh, I am very sorry," and then she glared and said, "That is all right."

my dear, I can't blame you because the wind was blowing." Then I told her that the next time the wind was blowing when I emptied ashes I would wet them first, and she said I was a dear little boy, and she was surprised that such a rotten family could have such a nice child. I said so was I. She said that because she had had a squabble with my aunt like most everyone does, and I think she hoped that I would go in the house and tell what she had said to me.

When I had fed my face and got over to the vacant lot with the bunch Miss Palmer called me, and the bunch all groaned, because they thought she wanted me to do an errand, which is what grownups mostly call little boys for, but when I got over there she said me if I knewed where there was any walnut trees, and I told her there was lots of them out on the Hogback, so then she said if I would like she would take my aunt and me and Jubilee in her silver early Saturday and we would go out and get a lot of them and divide them up. I told her I would like to and maybe I could get Younis to go along. She looked surprised. I guess she didn't know little girls like to go hunting; then she laughed and said all right, but not to eat anyone else, so I said I wouldn't. When I told the bunch they all wished they was me. Younis said she would be glad to go. Then Feeble said she couldn't go because she had planned to make a lot of candy Saturday, and Maggie said she would help her. That is just my luck. I don't get any of the breaks.
